Nominations are now open until June 1 for the 2020 IEEE Computer Society/SEI Watts S. Humphrey Software Process Achievement Award. Since 1994, the SEI and the IEEE Computer Society have cosponsored the award, which recognizes outstanding achievements in improving an organization's ability to create and evolve high-quality software-dependent systems.

Award recipients join an elite group, including recent winners the U.S. Army CCDC Armaments Center, Fire Control Systems and Technology Directorate, Raytheon, and Nationwide IT. Recipients will receive an engraved, commemorative plaque at an event in which they present their accomplishments. In addition, the SEI will publish a technical report produced by the recipient describing their accomplishments, experiences, and lessons learned.
